

AI-POWERED ON-DEMAND SERVICE MARKETPLACE FOR BANGLADESH

Problem · Market · Solution · Product Walkthrough

Finding a trustworthy local specialist in Bangladesh is still a gamble

Households and businesses face the same four frustrations, every single time they need a repair or service done.

No Trust Signal

Anyone can claim to be an electrician or plumber — there's rarely a verified ID, rating, or track record to check before a stranger enters your home.

Opaque Pricing

Quotes are negotiated on the spot, in person, with no fixed reference — leaving room for inflated “emergency” charges after the job has already begun.

No Payment Protection

Cash changes hands directly with no escrow or recourse — if the work is poor or incomplete, the money is already gone.

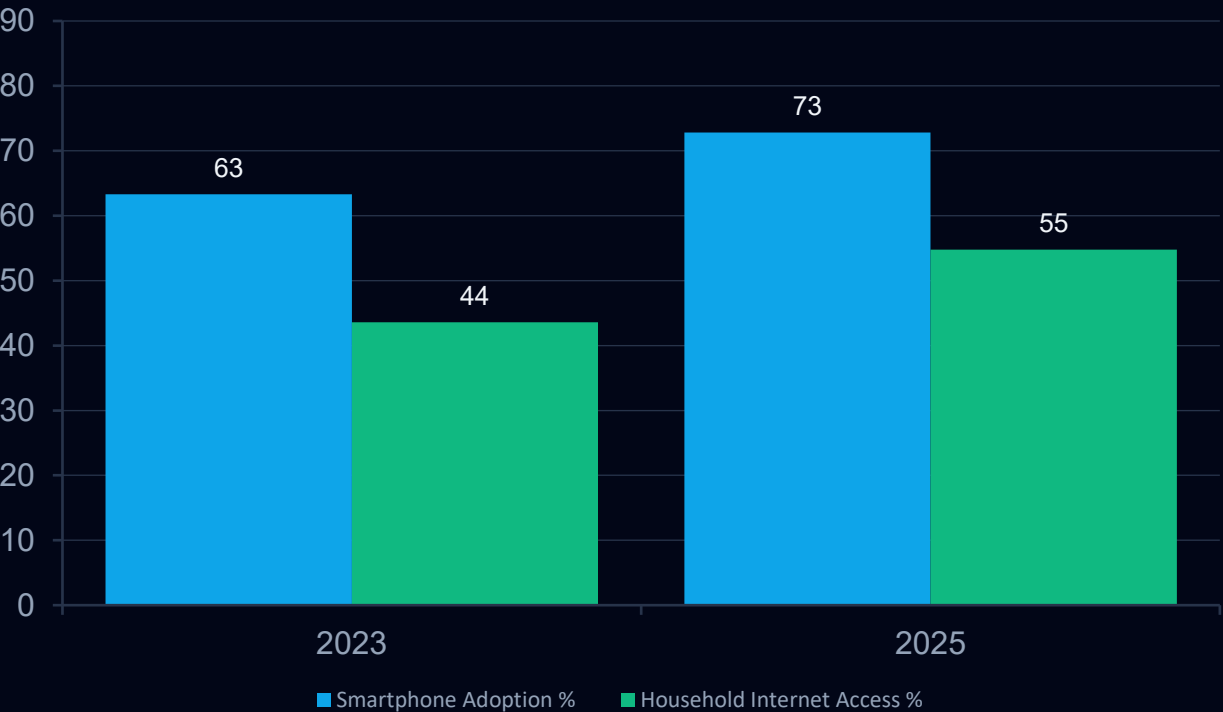

Slow, Manual Matching

Finding someone means asking neighbours, scrolling Facebook groups, or cold-calling numbers — with no urgency triage or ETA.

A large, increasingly connected market — still served offline

Bangladesh's digital backbone has scaled fast enough to support a trust-first, app-based service marketplace.

Bangladesh already has service apps — but real gaps remain

Two established players cover the market today. Both stop short of a trust-first, tech-forward experience.
